Land Acknowledgement Statement

We should take a moment to acknowledge the land on which we are gathered. For thousands of years, this land has been the home of Patwin people. Today, there are three federally recognized Patwin tribes: Cachil DeHe Band of Wintun Indians of the Colusa Indian Community, Kletsel Dehe Wintun Nation, and Yocha Dehe Wintun Nation.

The Patwin people have remained committed to the stewardship of this land over many centuries. It has been cherished and protected, as elders have instructed the young through generations. We are honored and grateful to be here today on their traditional lands.

Session Objectives

- Define Anti-racism, Anti-racist pedagogy, Anti-racist educator
- Critically reflect on current pedagogical practices
- Explore how to build Anti-racist pedagogies using technology within teaching, cognitive, and social presences
- Examine Anti-racist pedagogical practices
- Review resources for continued Anti-racist work

Meeting Agreements

We promote an atmosphere for learning

We treat each other with respect

We take care of ourselves.

We are present

We actively listen

Designing Anti-Racist Technologies for a Just Future

We can't leave technology development and monitoring merely to those who have the technical know-how. The experiences and insights of the marginalized matter.”

What is Technology's Role for Power and Policies in the Classroom

Anti-racist Defined

“One who is supporting an antiracist policy through their actions or expressing an antiracist idea.” (p. 14)

Connecting concepts:

- “One who is expressing the idea that racial groups are equals and none needs developing.
- ...and one who is supporting policy that reduces racial inequity.” (p. 25)
- “The only way to undo racism is to consistently identify it and describe it– and then dismantle it.” (p. 9)

Anti-racist Pedagogy Defined

“Anti-racist pedagogy attempts to teach about race and racism in a way that fosters critical analytical skills, which reveal the power relations behind racism and how race has been institutionalized in U.S. society to create and justify inequalities” (p. 547).

“Anti-racist pedagogy is not about simply incorporating racial content into courses, curriculum, and discipline. It is also about how one teaches, even in courses where race is not the subject matter” (p. 540).

Anti-racist Educator Defined

“An antiracist educator actively works to dismantle the structures, policies, institutions, and systems that create barriers and perpetuate race-based inequities for people of color.”

Self-Awareness and Reflection

Being an anti-racist requires...

- persistent self-awareness
- constant self-criticism
- regular self-examination

Take the necessary time to reflect on...

- our attitudes and actions
- our social identities
- our internalized experiences
- our use of technology

Engaging in Inquiry as Critical Educators

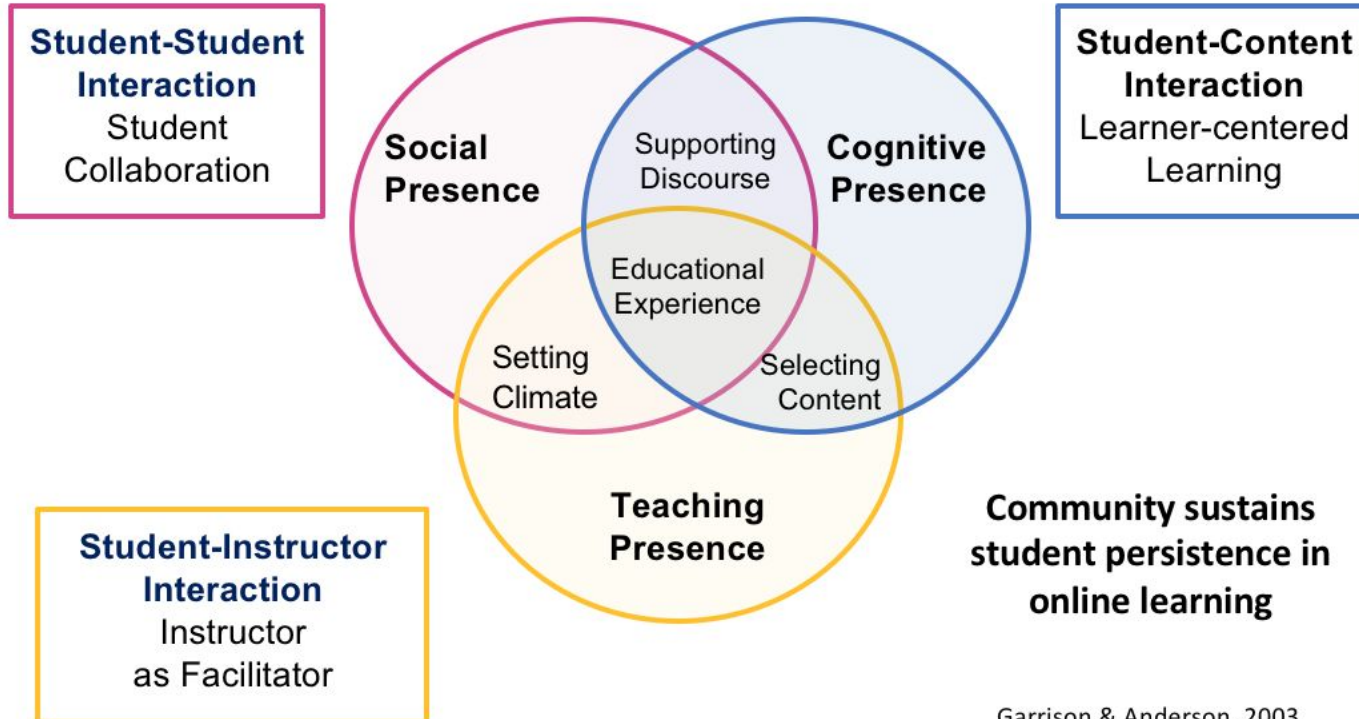

Questions to ask ourselves as critical educators when using educational technology:

- In what ways could a particular pedagogical practice, program, or policy disadvantage my BIPOC and minoritized students?
- Who, by race and ethnicity, is most likely to benefit from a particular practice, program, or policy?
- What access to technology do my students have?
- What teaching delivery formats will support learning for all my students?

Community of Inquiry (Col) Model

What is Technology's Role for Power and Policies in the Classroom

power in the classroom ➡ policy in the classroom ➡ inequities in the classroom

Social practices and recurring behaviors are also policies (de facto policies are just as important as written or institutionalized policies).

Be transparent about the purpose of your course content and activities, the tasks that students have to complete, the technology used in those tasks, and the criteria for success in your class.

Anti-Racist Teaching Presence

Use technology to make meaningful connections with students and to communicate that you care

- Use technology to get to know your students (e.g., Canvas course) and for them to get to know more about you (e.g., video introductions)
- Support instructor-student communication through different media (e.g., Zoom office hours, email, Canvas course, other discussion platforms)

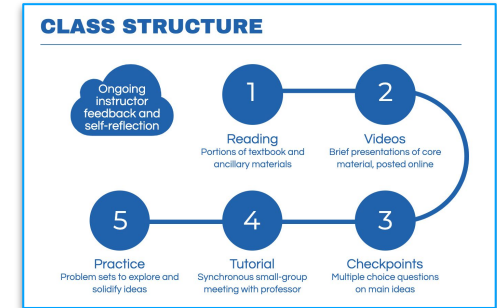

Welcome, preview/review, orientation,
Q&A, reminder videos, notes, podcasts

Anti-Racist Teaching Presence

Use your syllabus to communicate about your technologies and that you care

- Include information in your syllabus about course technologies needed and where to obtain support or help (e.g., where to get a notebook for class, where to connect to wifi...)
- Include a Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion syllabus statement, guidelines for personal pronouns, a brief video where you read or explain your DEI statement
- Create an infographic syllabus, as a supplement to the long syllabus

Anti-Racist Cognitive Presence

Use technology to ensure the learning environment is culturally relevant

- Consider access to the technology and access to the knowledge of “how to use” the technology
- Offer guidance on its use (e.g., tutorials and/or step-by-step explanations on how to use technology, resources and links to where students can get help)
- Offer both synchronous/asynchronous Zoom sessions and discussions for both access and flexibility

Modeling procedures, skills, methods; providing step-by-step explanations and examples

Anti-Racist Cognitive Presence

Critically evaluate how course content can be reflective of and advantage all of your students equally

- Consider whose voices, perspectives, and scholarship are being represented in the technology tools you use
- Use open-access technology tools that don't come with a financial cost
 - Google Suite (docs, slides, sheets, jamboard)
 - MentiMeter
- Explore equitable assessments and communicate these to TAs
 - Use Canvas features to anonymize student names and integrate rubrics
 - More equitable grading processes such as norming grading amongst TAs or grading by question number

Anti-Racist Social Presence

Use technology to help students make meaningful connections with each other

- Design collaborative assignments that integrate the use of technology as simple as Gdocs or as complex as mixed media lab reports
- If possible, intentionally create diverse student groups and explore how students can connect with new students in class
- Actively engage students in groups in class where the device to student ratio does not need to be 1:1

Anti-Racist Social Presence

Have a plan for monitoring digital platforms like you would classroom discussions

- Consider how microaggressions might play out over technological media like in discussion boards or Piazza
 - Recognize micro-aggressions and decide to intervene, using micro-affirmations
- Establish ground rules in order to model civil discourse and a plan to engage in difficult conversations

Breakout Room Discussion:

What is educational technology's role in advancing an anti-racist teaching agenda?

Anti-Racism Action Requires Self-Awareness, Reflection, and Self-Education

This ongoing process of self-awareness self-education helps us discover how racist biases, racist views, and racist practices still impact our institutions and the teaching and learning experiences of Black, Indigenous, and People of Color (BIPOC) and minoritized students.

7 Steps for Continuous Action

- Think critically about academic literature
- Read timely peer-reviewed journals
- Keep abreast of current articles & interviews
- Watch videos and webinars
- Listen to podcasts
- Investigate and contribute to crowdsourced repositories
- Explore websites

Anti-racism Series
PART 1: Definition and Significance

As racial inequities and disparities permeate society, these inequities also appear on campuses, in curricula, and in classrooms. In his most recent book, How to be an Antiracist, Kendi defines an anti-racist¹ as: "One who is expressing the idea that racial groups are equals and none needs developing, and is supporting policy that reduces racial inequity" (2019, p. 29). Implicit in Kendi's definition of an anti-racist is the expectation of actually doing something. Neither inaction nor silence offer pathways to equity. He suggests, "...the only way to undo racism is to consistently identify and describe it – and then dismantle it" (Kendi, 2019, p. 9).

As educators, we can infuse our professional practice with actions in support of anti-racist ideals. We can all contribute to this race and equity work, so that the entire burden does not fall solely on Black and Indigenous People of Color (BIPOC). Beginning with a vigilant self-awareness, we can interrogate our own experiences and unconscious biases (see Implicit Bias series), disrupting the privileges from which we may benefit. Reflecting on privilege and acknowledging racism and white supremacy (see Figure 1) can help keep focus on our anti-racist work.
